Habituation is an example of non-associative learning in which the strength or probability of a response diminishes when the stimulus is repeated. The response is typically a reflex or unconditioned response. Thus, habituation must be distinguished from extinction, which is an associative process. In operant extinction, for example, a response declines because it is no longer followed by a reward.

Today I found out around 85% of humans only breathe out of one nostril at a time. Even more interesting is that the pattern of switching from breathing out of one nostril to the other happens in a cyclical fashion, with about four hours or so between each switch typically; although, this can vary ...

One of the main projects we are in the process of tacking on the RV is a modification to the electrical system. Our Crusader 5th Wheel came with a pretty basic but standard power setup consisting of a single 12 Volt deep cycle battery and converter/charger/circuit breaker panel with 120VAC 60 Hz available in the interior only when connected to a shore power supply or when running gasoline ...
